R2 The sanctions came as the U.S., Britain, France, and Germany denounced Russia for its apparent role in a nerve-gas attack on a former Russian spy and his daughter on British soil, which is a violation of British sovereignty and international law. FPSC5 President Trump tends to praise dictators to their face and then take stronger actions against them. With Russia he congratulated Putin on his election but sent more advanced weapons to the Ukraine that the Obama administration had not. With China he has tried to be personally warm with its leader Xi Jinping but then called out their trade practices. Do you think this is a negotiating tactic or just inexperience?
